An IU education is one of the world’s best.

There’s no single path to becoming your best. So we empower you to make your own.

- Personalize your education by combining programs, specializing, or creating your own major or minor.
- Prepare for the careers of tomorrow.
- Hone the essential and timeless career skills employers want.
- Create or discover something new.
- Be taught, inspired, and mentored by our faculty.

Xandria McDowell, an intelligent systems engineering major, worked on a wildfire data logistics project. It involved the programming of robots to avoid obstacles and transmit information to firefighters in the field. Her work helped her earn an internship at NSWC Crane, a nearby naval base.

Jesús Bazán Vitlicaña studied cell division of the pathogen Streptococcus pneumoniae in Professor of Biology Malcolm Winkler’s lab, aided by IU's Light Microscopy Imaging Center. His work could help lead to better antibiotics. He also developed a strong foundation in research that prepared him well for the M.D./Ph.D. program he entered after IU. He plans to become a physician-scientist focusing on infectious disease.

Modeled after her cat, Cosmo, Little Mister was Kate Lasser's first large sculpture. The lessons she learned from her art projects and scenic design work at IU set the stage for her creative career: she lives in Chicago, where she worked as an art department production assistant on the TV show Empire. This opportunity opened the door for her career goals in television and film set design.
ADVENTURE
OF A LIFETIME

380+ overseas study programs give you the world.

They span 70+ countries and 20 languages, including English. Stays range from a few days to a full year.

IU students have interned for European fashion houses. Analyzed IT development in India. Taught reading and writing to children in Rwanda. Created documentaries in Ecuador. So where will you go, and what will you do?

Morgan McKown took this photo on a trip to Morocco during her semester in London. While abroad, she worked toward her degree in healthcare management and policy by studying politics and global development, which informed her understanding of health policies in the United States and other countries.
Sade Roberson interned at nearby French Lick Resort, in the magnificent, historic West Baden Springs Hotel. She learned all about operating a hotel, confirmed that she wants to work in hospitality, and spent a summer doing what she loves: making guests happy.

Spencer Biery started in IU’s University Division (UD) before entering a degree-granting IU school. His UD advisor, Alice Dobie, was a key source of ideas, feedback, and support as he tried out majors and found his best fit. International studies. Last summer he studied in the Dominican Republic.

How to apply

We’ll guide you step-by-step. Start here, and then learn more and apply: go.iu.edu/apply

1. Get ready to apply

Start early. Review our application options, required materials, and deadlines so you know what to submit and when you’ll receive a response.

November 1 is the early action deadline (non-binding) and scholarship deadline. To meet this deadline, you must submit a complete application for admission, including official transcript, IU-specific essay, and SAT/ACT scores (if applicable*) by this date.

Application deadlines

Submit a complete application by this deadline:

November 1
February 1

Receive a response no later than:

January 15
March 15

All applications submitted after February 1 will be considered on a space-available, case-by-case basis.

Students admitted for fall 2020

Middle 50% Average/Median

SAT (Math and Evidence-Based Reading and Writing) 1150–1370 1268 average
ACT (Composite) 25–32 28 average
High school GPA 3.61–4.00 3.90 median

2. Complete your application

Choose your application at go.iu.edu/apply. You have three options:

• Apply IU Application
• Common Application
• Coalition Application

Even though you have three options, you should submit only one application for admission to IU Bloomington. No preference is given for any one application over the others, and the items required to complete each application are the same. The admission review process is also the same for all three. The application fee is non-refundable.

You also need to:

• Submit the IU-specific essay as part of your application.
• Submit your official high school transcript.
• If you took the SAT or ACT, you may share either official or self-reported scores (if applicable*). If you self-report and are offered admission, the offer will be contingent upon receipt of test scores from official testing agencies, which must match or be higher than those you self-reported.

3. After you apply

We’ll thoroughly review all your materials.

Create your computing account so you can check the status of your application and To Do List online at one.iu.edu.

If you’re a transfer, intercampus transfer, adult, military/veteran, or second degree applicant or a visiting student, visit our website to learn how and when to apply for undergraduate admission: go.iu.edu/how-apply

Get moneysmart

Our MoneysMarts program helps you establish good financial habits, make informed financial decisions, and reduce your debt.

Since 2011, we’ve helped IU Bloomington undergrads reduce their federal student-loan borrowing by 31 percent, or $29.1 million. Among our 2018–19 bachelor’s degree recipients, 56 percent graduated with no student-loan debt. Nationally, that figure was about 43 percent in 2017–18, the last year for which data is available. In total, about 88 percent of our 2018–19 bachelor’s degree recipients had no student-loan debt or had a student-loan balance below the national average.
