Students in Luddy Hall admire Amatria. This forest-inspired landscape of 3D-printed organic structures is a living sculpture that responds with sound, movement, and color to visitors who interact with her.
IU’s globally recognized Luddy School of Informatics, Computing, and Engineering inspired international student and Wells Scholar Agness Lungu to leave her home in Lusaka, Zambia, to study engineering, mathematics, and journalism. Passionate about artificial intelligence and robotics, Agness was drawn to Luddy for its highly specialized intelligent systems engineering program, which encompasses each of her interests.

An IU education is one of the world’s best. There’s no single path to becoming your best. So we empower you to make your own.

- Personalize your education by combining programs, specializing, or creating your own major or minor.
- Prepare for the careers of tomorrow.
- Hone the essential and timeless career skills employers want.
- Create or discover something new.
- Be taught, inspired, and mentored by our faculty.

Keaton Weber decided to attend IU so he could pursue a major in music education and a minor in conducting at the highly-regarded Jacobs School of Music. Passionate about percussion, Keaton appreciated the opportunity to enjoy a large campus experience while still receiving a world-class music degree.

A native of Greencastle, Indiana, Abby Teipen fell in love with biology long before college. Upon visiting, Abby recognized the university for what it is: “I saw how many opportunities IU promised, so I took a chance and applied. I haven’t looked back since!” Abby’s enthusiasm and dedication earned her a place working alongside a professor in a research lab, where she gets real-world, hands-on experience.
ADVENTURE
OF A LIFETIME

380+ overseas study programs give you the world.

They span 70+ countries and 20 languages, including English. Stays range from a few days to a full year.

IU students have interned for European fashion houses. Analyzed IT development in India. Taught reading and writing to children in Rwanda. Created documentaries in Ecuador. So where will you go, and what will you do?

Morgan McKown took this photo on a trip to Morocco during her semester in London. While abroad, she worked toward her degree in healthcare management and policy by studying politics and global development, which informed her understanding of health policies in the United States and other countries.
EXPERIENCE THAT MAKES YOU STAND OUT

Get noticed by employers, and get ready to excel after they hire you.

Internships
Get work experience in your future career, build your network of contacts, and see what kind of workplace suits you.

Leadership opportunities
Complete the Hoosier Leadership Program, serve in IU Student Government, direct a student organization, and more.

Service
Enrich your life and help others through service-learning courses, IU Corps, alternative breaks, and student organizations.

Hutton Honors College
Join a community of talented and highly motivated students with plenty of unique programming and opportunities.

More ways to get experience and prepare for what’s next:

• Train for a financial services career in the Investment Banking Workshop.
• Devise solutions to global policy challenges in the IU Diplomacy Lab.
• Launch your research career in the Science, Technology, and Research Scholars (STARS) program.
• Tell stories through the Indiana Daily Student, IU Student Television, and WIUX radio.
• Help nonprofits with technology in the Serve IT clinic.
• Teach students in different cultures through the Global Gateway for Teachers program.
• Debut your mini-collection in the IU Fashion Show.
• Prepare for advanced study and a career in law, medicine, or health through the Health Professions and Prelaw Center.

Spencer Biery started in IU’s University Division (UD) before entering a degree-granting IU school. His UD advisor, Alice Dobie, was a key source of ideas, feedback, and support as he tried out majors and found his best fit: international studies. Last summer he studied in the Dominican Republic.

Sade Roberson interned at nearby French Lick Resort, in the magnificent, historic West Baden Springs Hotel. She learned all about operating a hotel, confirmed that she wants to work in hospitality, and spent a summer doing what she loves: making guests happy.

3,000+

Morgan Sanders discovered his entrepreneurial side at age 16, when he started a sneaker resale business, Morgan’s Kickz. Now a management major at the Kelley School of Business, Morgan is learning more about himself and business. “No one has ever traveled this post-Covid world before, and we can go down a new road with tons of opportunities for innovation and change.”
TURN YOUR AMBITIONS INTO OPTIONS

For his individualized major in marine biology, Joshua Stewart dove into underwater research projects such as studying coral growth on shipwrecks. He received a Ph.D. at Scripps Institution of Oceanography, where he studied manta rays. Now he researches whales at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and is an associate director of The Manta Trust.

How to apply

You also need to:
- Submit the IU-specific essay as part of your application. Note: If you apply via the Common Application, this essay is called the Writing Supplement for IU Bloomington.
- Submit your official high school transcript.
- If you took the SAT or ACT, share either your official or self-reported scores (if applicable*) by one of your application deadlines. Please note: test scores that are listed on your high school transcript do not count as self-reported—you must self-report them on your application or via our self-report form. If you self-report and are offered admission, the offer will be contingent upon receipt of official test scores from testing agencies, which must match or be higher than those you self-reported. If you self-reported scores from multiple tests, you will need to send official score reports for each test.

Ready, set, apply!

Get moneysmart

Our MoneySmarts program helps you establish good financial habits, make informed financial decisions, and reduce your debt.

Since 2011, we’ve helped IU Bloomington undergrads reduce their federal student loans by 26%. Fifty-one percent of our 2020–2021 bachelor’s degree recipients graduated with no student loan debt. Nationally, that figure was about 43% in 2017–18, the last year for which data is available. In total, about 88% of our 2020–2021 bachelor’s degree recipients graduated with either no debt or debt less than $30,000.
